"A Pox on both . . ."

HERBERT RALBY
Sportswriter, Boston Globe

Come Thansgiving Day and my house is a house divided against itself.

My brother-in-law is an English High graduate. I owe my allegiance to Latin School.

We are a couple of old grads who have mellowed a bit. The roots of loyalty to our respective schools are still there but in our mellowness the bitter rivalry which exists between these traditional foes on the gridiron each Thansgiving, isn't as keen between us as it once was.

But then my 10 year old nephew is an entirely different story.

When it comes to rooting for the Bruins in the National Hockey League pennant race, nephew Marvin Pave, goes along with me 100 percent. He's a Bruins' fan through thick and thin.

He'll agree with me too about Bob Cousy and the Boston Celtics. He'll defend me if I'm attacked for sticking up for the Celtics in National Basketball Association competition.

He is a Tony DeMarco fight fan too. He agrees with his uncle that the hard-punching North End welterweight is a potential champ. Yep, no argument there either.

But the Latin-English football game! — well that's another story.

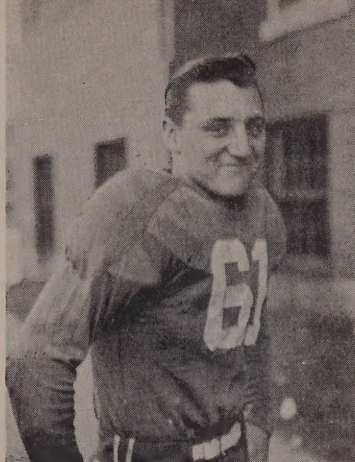

Marvin's dad is an English High graduate and that makes him a rabid Blue and Blue rooter.

Thansgiving eve and Thanksgiving morning our house is really a house divided against itself.

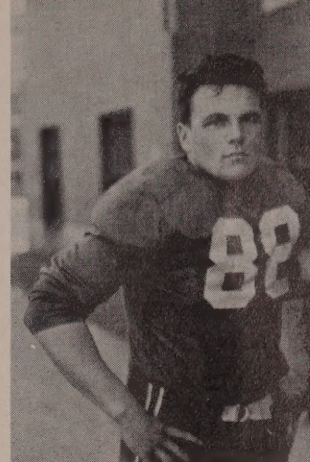

"Latin was lucky last year," says Marv, "English will wallop them this year."

"What about the year before," I'll say, "Latin has defeated English two straight years."

"That's nothing," he'll retort, "English won the two years before."

Of course should English win today, heaven forbid a Latin man should even consider such a thought, it won't be very comfortable around the house with the heckling from the small fry.

But then there is one consolation for me. Marv will be on my side come another year.

He is an English High rooter now. But oddly enough, he will enter the Latin school sixth class next Fall.

Reminiscences

By DOC MOONEY

This important space in this traditional program dedicated to help keep rich the oldest of school football series, has been set aside in other years for the old grads of English High and Boston Latin (in alphabetical order), who had developed a flare in writing, particularly sports writing.

The 'ol Dean of the school sports writers, who started on his career in 1913 and, with the exception of the First World War years, has been continually tabulating the sports events on the school athletic fields ever since, has this morning been honored with space in this program.

It is with the attitude that it doesn't concern me which team wins on the Stadium turf this morning, that I can be relaxed, as few attending today may, for in most instances a son, nephew or neighbor, is making the fight of his young life on that gridiron, and needs the hearty encouragement that this truly partisan crowd, on one side or the other, can lend.

Many a Thanksgiving morning I have been down there refereeing this battle. It mattered no more to me then which team won. I was either thought good or lousey by one team or the other, according to the way the game swung. The life of an official is like that. But I am happy to relate that I was never murdered during or after the game.

The fact of the matter was that the games were decidedly on the gentlemanly and sportsman side, but played just about as hard and as rugged as one could stand. It has always been that way from the days when I broke into this big school classic, when Dan O'Flaherty coached English and the late and beloved Fred O'Brien coached Latin.

Their's was a close friendship that couldn't be matched, unless perhaps in later years when Charlie Fitzgerald of Latin and Bill Ohrenberger of English set the example of how coaches could be close friends and behave even under the extreme strain of a Thanksgiving morning tussle. Little wonder then that English and Latin have such a proud traditional background in their series.

Over a span of 40 years I naturally have watched some great football players from both schools, great enough to go on to brilliant success in college. Individually they are too numerous to mention, but it is a well known fact that the college ranks have been jammed with them, and from other schools in Boston as well.

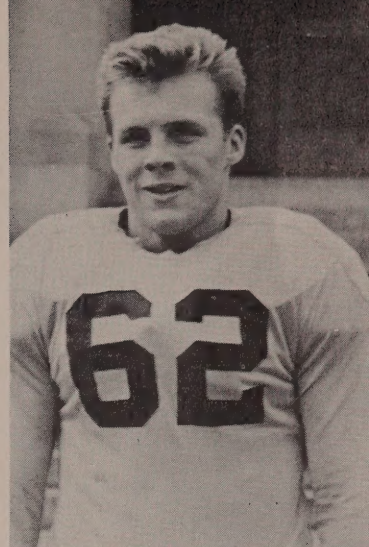

Over a still longer span, that goes back to 1908, when I first attempted to play high school football, I can dare to pick a Latin team as one of the greatest schoolboy aggregations ever to play in this section. This was a Fred O'Brien product of 1910. Possibly the Everett team of 1914, the 600 point team, and Waltham's great team of 1908, might get a slightly better rating, but that Latin team was a standout.

Every player was a star and practically all made good in college. Those I recall were Mal Logan who quarterbacked Harvard in Haughton's greatest era. The late Fred Murray who once coached English and more recently Roslindale High went on to fame at Georgetown. Bill Prendergast, present coach at Dorchester, was one of Colby's greatest linemen. Others were Austie Tate of Lehigh, Joe O'Hara of West Point, other backs, Dick Halligan, Max Gersumsky, Sam Temple and King, all of Harvard, ends Joe Fish of Seaton Hall and Pete McClellan, Murphy a center at Colby and John Colby of Dartmouth.

Latin beat everything that fall and wound up with Logan booting four field goals to blank English.

English and Latin have taken opposite sides ever since they first faced each other on Boston Common for their first football game in 1887. Later they were on opposite sides of that now ancient structure bordered by Dartmouth and Montgomery streets. At present they are on opposite sides of Avenue Louis Pasteur, again a natural assembly for such rivals. May they always be on opposite sides on Thansgiving morning so long as the game of football retains a scrimmage line.

"Many of the players gave evidence of great pluck" . . . As usual: continued drizzle during the game . . . During the night the Purple supporters had placed their colors on the flagpole, removed the ropes and well-greased the pole, and so trouble during the halves as the supporters of the Blue attempted to remove the colors . . . When the field was cleared, many hats were found "but their owners, with battered eyes and faces smiled contentedly" . . . Good old days? . . . Stars for the Blue: Whiting, Duffey, Scanlan and Woodbury . . . for the Purple: Johnson, Cowan, FitzGerald ("in the formation play (?) was good for many gains"), Corbett and Fotch . . . No photographs of game in papers of the day, line drawings!

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

1929 . . . BLS 13 — EHS 6 . . . Braves Field . . . Turkey dinners of the Purple tasted mighty fine after a starvation diet of four years of defeats . . . More than 20,000 freezing fans . . . The overhanging skies brought a shower of rain just at game time . . . then the rain became snow . . . and a blizzard was on us . . . Leo Daley (now Assistant Superintendent of Schools) coach of the Blue, but from BLS, '12 . . . Exceptional punting by Gould (L) and the fine line play of both teams gave the spectators fine football scenes in spite of the weather . . . took Gould four plays to score from the 3½ yard line where a Gould to Rabinovitz pass had brought the ball . . . In spite of the weather, both teams took to the air . . . Krivitsky (E) to Cubilewich pass very effective . . . Kenney, Freno, Krivitsky alternated until the last named scored . . . High light: Rabinovitz' 50 yard return of kick-off . . . The TD saved by Mr. K. . . . Wilson (L) came out of the line to punt — instead he threw a pass to Callaghan for a 30 yard TD . . . Then English started rolling toward the Latin Goal but Capt. Kopans, Russ Lynch and Steve Downes stepped in to save the day . . . Fine job in the Blue line by Donohoe, Toomey, and O'Lalor . . .

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

1939 . . . BLS 0 — EHS 0 . . . Braves Field . . . "Inspired Latin Team held to 0 - 0 Tie by unbeaten English" . . . The Blue which had swept thru the Boston Conference and "far more generously endowed in physical properties" never got beyond its own 48 yard line in possession of the ball . . . The Purple, however, marched to the 2, the 9, and the 17, but valiant defenses by the Blue prevented scores . . . The whole Latin Team starred with the very bright ones being — Rowen, Gorenstein, Beyer, McCarthy, Redgate, and Casey . . . Blue brights: King (who blocked attempted field goal), Brennan, Lombardi, and Shtogren.

TEN YEARS AGO

1944 . . . EHS 13 — BLS 7 . . . Harvard Stadium for the first time . . . Bob Murphy (E) blocked an end zone punt and then won a torrid race to the far corner to recover for a TD before 15,000 fans . . . Scores: The Blue scored on a 20 yard pass from Maloney to Northbridge who was waiting on the five — all alone — . . . A 19 yard runback by Harwood gave McMorrow a chance on fourth down to pass to Shields who gathered the pass in by a fingernail for the Purple score . . . At half-time: 6 - 6 . . . Murphy's winning play came in the fourth period . . . Blue stars: Murphy, Maloney, DiGiorgio, Luciano, and Northbridge . . . BLS stalwarts: Harwood, McMorrow, Shields, McLaughlin and Murphy.

FIVE YEARS AGO

1949 . . . BLS 19 — EHS 0 . . . Harvard Stadium . . . Undeclared and untied Latin Conference Champions . . . Our old friend "fumble-itis" present as both teams dropped the ball for the other to recover . . . Barton (L) recovered a Blue fumble and Carter (L) with a beautiful cutback raced 40 yards for the TD . . . Kent converted . . . Second period: Blue fumble, McNally recovering for the Purple . . . then to EHS 4 . . . Fumble, EHS' ball . . . Fumble, recovered by Skinner (L) . . . Graham scored . . . Stuart (E) broke away for 35 yards only to be caught by Wilson as the half ended . . . No score third period . . . Fourth period: 46 yard pass Semans to Skinner . . . then fumble . . . Jameson, Graham, and Doherty brought ball to Blue 10, then Semans to Skinner for the score . . . Toyias (L) intercepted a Blue last-ditch pass as game ended, running it back for 30 yards . . . The Purple outscored opponents 210 to 25 for the season . . . Stars for the Purple: entire squad . . . Blue brilliants: Stuart, McDonald, O'Leary, Fucillo, and McCabe.

LAST YEAR

1953 . . . BLS 31 — EHS 25 . . . Harvard Stadium . . . a right-left combination plus ability to cash in on breaks gave the Purple the victory . . . One of the wildest games in the series brought to mind the English victory of 41 - 30 in 1950 . . . 12,000 at the Stadium and thousands watched the game on TV . . . Connolly (L) and Shnider (L) each scored twice . . . yet McDonough (E) nearly stole the show . . . a little glue on the fingers of his receivers and the results might well have been otherwise . . . Scoring: Shnider (L) 73 yard jaunt . . . W. to P. McDonough (E) 27 yard pass . . . Connolly (L) 56 yards . . . McDonough to Beckett 24 yard pass and 6 yard run . . . Simmons (L) to Kirk all alone in end zone . . . Connolly 27 yards after recovered fumble . . . Shnider went from L 43 to E 23, then next play reversed to the left for TD . . . Lordan (E) after pass interception to Latin 19, then in three plays he scored . . . W. McDonough came up with the Statue of Liberty play to send Beckett around end unimpeded . . . Dick Levine intercepted to bring English's closing rush to a halt . . . Stars for the Purple: Connolly, Casey, Shnider, Simmons, and Kirk . . . Stars for the Blue: Both McDonoughs, Beckett, Gautreau, Lordan.
